

Entertainment

'Taylor Has Two Moms': Disney Channel Introduces Its First Lesbian Couple on a Kids' Show

Jan. 27, 2014 7:30pm Billy Hallowell

Related:

Disney,
Gay Marriage,
Gay Rights

News spread last summer that the Disney Channel was planning to introduce a lesbian couple for the first time on one of its children's TV programs. That's exactly what happened during Sunday's episode of "Good Luck Charlie," when a child with two mothers was prominently highlighted.

The scene featured Charlie, the main character, sitting in the living room with her father Bob (played by actor Eric Allen Kramer) and her mother Amy (played by Leigh Allyn Baker) discussing a play date that was set up with Charlie's friend Taylor.

Image source: Disney Channel

When Amy told Bob that Taylor's parents would also be joining them while the girls played, the two began debating Taylor's mother's name. Both said they had individually met the woman, but while Amy said her name was Susan, Bob remembered meeting a parent named Cheryl.

Since they weren't together at the time of the interactions, the two remained at odds.

When the doorbell finally rang and Taylor arrived with her mothers, Charlie's parents realized that they were both right: Susan and Bob were, indeed, speaking about two separate women.

"Taylor has two moms," Bob said after answering the door.

"Nothing gets past you, Bob," Amy said.

Watch the clip below:

The same-sex scene had long been anticipated. A representative for Disney detailed last summer how the network carefully approached the subject.

"This particular story line was developed under the consultancy of child development experts and community advisers," the Disney representative said. "Like all Disney Channel programming, it was developed to be relevant to kids and families around the world and to reflect themes of diversity and inclusiveness."

Conservative advocacy groups quickly spoke out against the move, with the organization One Million Moms decrying the decision to include a lesbian couple in one of the network's shows (the series finale of "Good Luck Charlie" is scheduled for next month).

"Just because something may be legal or because some are choosing a lifestyle doesn't make it morally correct. Disney should stick to entertaining instead of pushing an agenda," the group said in a statement. "Disney decided to be politically correct versus providing family-friendly programming."

Other Must-Read Stories

4 Simple Tips for Hardwood Flooring Care \(Shaw\)

'Graphic Sex Scene': These Parents Were in for a Big Surprise When They Took Their Kids to See the New Disney Movie

Ex-Disney Star Renounced Christianity and Became a Pagan - But That's Not the End of the Story

Caught in the Crossfire, a Utah Family's Harrowing Firsthand Account of the Kenyan Mall Massacre \(op-ed\)

The Moment Two Mothers Realize Their Babies Were Switched at Birth in Chance Meeting

—

Featured image via Disney/YouTube

Featured Comments

Sign In To Post Comments! Sign In

All information © 2014 TheBlaze Inc